7. The wine is now ready to serve. Discard the remaining ounce or two of sediment-filled liquid in the bottle.
8. Pour the wine (3oz.) by holding the bottom of the decanter, serving ladies first clockwise and the host last.
9. Remove the empty wine bottle and cork from the table.
10. Remember: Perfect wine service is when our guests never have to touch the bottle or decanter. All wine pouring is the responsibility of the home base server.

ALCOHOL SERVICE

When a guest leaves our restaurant intoxicated, the restaurant and the Team member who served the guest are both held liable for any harm or damage that ensues.

No fines or arrests are worth the hurt, harm or damage caused by irresponsible alcohol service. This information needs to be taken seriously.

Alcohol and the Human Body

One pint glass of beer, 2oz. of 80 proof liquor, and one 6oz. glass of wine are nearly equal in alcohol content.

As alcohol enters the body, 20% is absorbed into the bloodstream through stomach walls and 70 - 80% is absorbed through the small intestine. Once in the bloodstream, alcohol permeates through all body tissue. The more water that is in the body, the more diluted the alcohol becomes.

A small amount of alcohol in the blood (the result of consuming one drink per hour) will have a slight tranquilizing effect on most people. Even though alcohol may seem to stimulate the drinker, it is really a central nervous system depressant. After one or two drinks, the drinker's inhibitions may be lost and he/she may begin expressing him/herself more candidly, feeling like "the life of the party." Higher blood alcohol content levels depress brain activity, possibly impairing balance, memory and muscular coordination. Still a greater alcohol intake within a relatively short time span depresses the brain further, causing severely affected judgment, dulled sensory perceptions and loss of control.

The rate at which alcohol enters the bloodstream (absorption rate) depends on several factors:

1. How quickly it is consumed
2. Whether the stomach is full or empty
3. The kind of alcohol
4. How much the drinker weighs

Wine and beer are absorbed more slowly than hard liquors because they contain small amounts of nonalcoholic substances. Diluting an alcoholic beverage with another liquid, such as water, also helps decrease the absorption rate. However, mixing alcohol with carbonated beverages increases the rate of absorption; the only difference between a mixed drink with water and a straight shot of liquor is that the absorption rate for the mixed drink is somewhat slower.

The same amount of alcohol can, and usually does, have more intense effects on a 120 lb. person than a 180 lb. person. Because alcohol is quickly distributed.

The above information regarding safe alcohol service is only an introduction to the degree of knowledge that each Cazzy's Server and Bartender should be intimately familiar with. In order to legally sell alcohol in the state of Tennessee, servers, bartenders and all front of house managers must take the required five-hour course approved by Tennessee Alcoholic Beverage Commission and pass the accompanying test with a score of 80% or higher. Upon completion of the class and test, each employee will be issued a Tennessee A.B.C license. By law, one copy of each employee's ABC license must be kept in a secure place inside the building. The TABC License is valid for five years. The General Manager determines how these are stored and recorded. It is recommended, but not required, that each team member keep a 2nd copy of their ABC license on their person, preferably in a wallet, purse or the like.

Safe, intelligent, and knowledgeable alcohol service is paramount to the operation of a successful and responsible, upscale full-service restaurant like Cazzy's. Cazzy's can provide outstanding cuisine, fantastic service, in the nicest possible environment for many years, only to have one tragic, avoidable accident occur due to negligence, which could jeopardize the entire business, and the employment of everyone who is a part of the team. ALWAYS, ALWAYS, ALWAYS let a manager know immediately if a guest seems intoxicated. It is better to be safe than sorry.
